

THE ARIZONA REPUBLICAN.

VOL. I.

PHOENIX, THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 29, 1890.

NO. 11

ABOUT PROHIBITION.

Lively Discussion in the Senate Yesterday.

The Original Package Bill Causes a Stir.

The House Passes the Chieftain Military Bill and the River and Harbor Bill.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Senator Sherman, reported an amendment to the consular and diplomatic appropriation bill, authorizing the President to carry into effect the recommendations of the international conference by the appointment of three commissioners to represent the United States in the Inter-Colonial Railway commission. Also to detail from the army and navy, officers to serve as engineers under such commission.

The Senate bill subjecting imported liquors to the laws of several states was then taken up. Faulkner expressed himself in favor of doing something. Of passing some bill that would relieve the situation that now confronts congress. In speaking of the regulation of the liquor traffic, he said he himself believed as did the people of his State, that the high license system was the true method of dealing with the question. He had given notice of an amendment somewhat similar to the substitute reported by the Judiciary committee. He criticized the substitute, objecting, for instance, to the use of the word "prohibition," and suggested that the object could be obtained by the use of the word "regulation."

Wilson, of Iowa, did not agree with Faulkner and argued in favor of the substitute.

Pugh argued in favor of the bill and said its defeat would leave the states in a most serious predicament.

Mr. Call expressed sympathy with the idea that the States had absolute control of the traffic in intoxicating liquor and was willing to be for almost any bill which would attain that end. Allison yielded the floor to Allison, who presented the conference report on the army appropriation bill. Ingalls inquired what had been done in regard to the Senate amendment prohibiting the sale of liquor at cantenens. Allison said the provision had been modified to read: "That no alcoholic liquors, beer or wine shall be sold or supplied to enlisted men in any canten or post trader's store in any State or Territory in which the sale of alcoholic liquors, beer or wine is prohibited by law."

There was quite a spirited debate on this point. Blair held that it is an entire surrender of the proposition. Allison said of course the provision applies only to States and Territories where prohibitory laws prevail. The House conferees were unanimous in insisting that the Senate provisions should not remain in the bill. Paddock said it is within bonds to state that nineteen-twentieths of the troops are stationed outside of the States and Territories where prohibitory laws are enforced. Allison said that the Senate conferees did the best they could in the matter. Blair insisted that the language adopted is a substantial surrender of the senate position and that the army canten will remain in substantially full force.

Ingalls said either the control of the army so far as the sale of intoxicating liquor is concerned ought to be in the United States or it ought not. Congress ought either to say all soldiers shall have the opportunity of getting drunk or it ought not. The proposition to leave the control of the question to the local legislation seems indefensible and so far as the Senate is concerned it would be more nearly to relinquish the whole thing absolutely rather than to have it so mutilated.

Allison withdrew the report and said he would call it tomorrow.

The House for the bill was reported with amendments and laid on the table.

The conference report on the bill for a public building at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, was agreed to.

Consideration of the liquor bill was resumed. Pierce criticized the arguments of some of the Democratic Senators, and made an argument in support of the bill. Turpie said the Senate had under consideration no duty whatever to perform on this subject. With respect to the shoddy, transparent and gaudy essence, or image of an essence, that is called, "Moral Sentiment Behind Prohibitory Legislation," he did not believe we had denomination of coin to measure its value. After further debate the Senate adjourned.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Hon. Richard Vaux qualified as the late ex-Speaker Randall's successor.

The bill passed appropriating $125,000 for the establishment of a national military park at the battlefield of Chieftain. A conference was ordered on the appropriation bill.

The House went into committee of the whole on the river and harbor bill. The pending question was on the point of order raised by McCrery against the clause prescribing penalties upon owners of bridges which obstructed navigation. The Chair overruled the point of order. On motion of Dannel the section declaring it shall not be lawful to construct bridges over any navigable waterway of the United States within the limits of a State without obtaining the approval of the Secretary of War was then stricken out. The committee then rose and reported the bill to the House.

Dockery moved to recommit the bill with instructions to the committee on rivers and harbors to report it back with the Hennepin canal clause stricken out. The motion was lost. The bill then passed without division, after which the House adjourned.

AFTER THE RED DEVILS.

GENERAL MILES WANTS TO RUN THEM DOWN.

He Lays Before the War Department a Plan by Which He Can Break Up the Murderous Bands.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Secretary Proctor has received a telegram from General Miles recommending that he be given authority to remove from the San Carlos reservation to a place of safety, the Indians now making trouble; also that he may remove the peaceably disposed Indians, who have for years petitioned to be sent to Verde or McDowell; also that the treaty with Mexico, which allows troops of each government to cross the line while in pursuit of savages be renewed.

General Miles states that he proposes to arrange two small and effective commands to pursue continuously the Indian bands now out, but the commands will be hampered unless they can pursue the Indians into the mountain fastness of Mexico. Secretary Proctor, after consulting with the necessary cabinet officers, will advise General Miles of the result.

RAILROAD STATISTICS.

THE ENORMOUS LOSS OF LIFE YEARLY.

Some Startling Figures—Speaker Reed Closes the Bar of the Congressional Restaurant—Off for Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The national convention of railroad commissioners was held here today. Chairman Cooley, of the Interstate Commerce commission, presiding. The report of the committee on legislation said that a lack of uniformity in railway legislation is due first to a want of harmony between Congress and the Legislatures, and second to a want of harmony in the legislation of different States. The report recommended that the main features of the Interstate Commerce law be made a part of the law of the different States and that laws be enacted by Congress securing uniformity in various details of railroad equipment and management with a view to the greater safety for employees and the public.

The statement compiled by the Interstate Commerce commission showed that during the year ending June 30, 1889, there were killed on the railways of the United States 8,223 people and 26,039 injured. Of the number killed 1,971 were employees, 310 passengers and 3,541 denominated "other persons." Of the injured 20,028 were employees, 2,146 passengers and 4,135 "other persons." The number railway employees is given at 704,536.

THIRTY CONGRESSMEN.
Speaker Reed today ordered the discontinuance of the sale of intoxicating liquors in the House restaurant. The order is temporary, to give the Speaker an opportunity to learn just what bearing the joint rules have in the matter and what the sentiment of the House is. The effect of the order today was a noticeable diminution in the patronage of the House restaurant and a largely increased business at the Senate restaurant, largely composed of members of the House.

BIG SEIZURE OF OPIUM.

OFFICERS MAKE A RICH HAUL AT PORTLAND.

Trainmen on the Northern Pacific Railroad Connected With a Well Organized Band of Smugglers.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 28.—The authorities last night made a seizure of 310 5-tal cans of opium, valued at about $2000, at a Chinese washhouse on Second street.

The authorities have suspected for some time that an organized band of smugglers existed here. They arrested John Mays a brakeman on the Northern Pacific railroad as one of the principals.

It seems that the opium had been sent to Lee Hing, a Chinese merchant, upon its arrival. Hing in company with Mays and a conductor went down to receive it. When they arrived at the washhouse they found the opium had been located by Customs Officers and refused to pay for it. The brakeman and conductor, at the point of a pistol, forced Hing to write a note to his partners telling them to send the money or the railroad men would kill him. The note was given to Mays to deliver, but fell into the hands of the officers who caused the arrest. Before the other principals could be secured they forced Lee Hing into a hack and escaped, taking the Chinaman with them.
